City board ponders project priorities

Priorities were discussed at great length by the Washington C.H. Board of Education Monday night, but few conclusions were reached. The items being considered include initiating a physical education program in the city's elementary schools, an in-school lunch program for the elementary schools, organization of a wrestling team at Washington Senior High School and improvement of the home economics facilities at the Middle School.

All were discussed, all are being investigated and none are assured of implementation. Apparently at the top of the list is the home economics remodeling project. Superintendent Edwin M Nestor informed the board that architects have confirmed the opinion of Max Lawrence, of Associated Plumbers and Heaters, that the only feasible improvement plan would be to remodel the present pasement facilities.

There had been discussion of moving the home economics department to an upstairs area, but the cost appears to be prohibitive.

The board authorized Nestor to have specifications prepared for the remodeling project. The specifications would then be let for bids. Cost estimates tend to range in the neighborhood of $15,000-$20,000, but it was noted, however, that the cost could vary considerably depending upon the final specifications.

The elementary lunch program would cost the system some $25,000 for initial installation. Although the equipment needed to provide lunches in each elementary school would cost approximately $100,000, federal funding would provide 75 per cent of the money, leaving the remainder for the system.

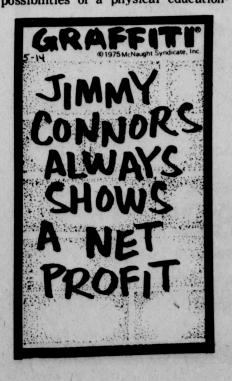

Under the proposed program, the food would be prepared at Washington Senior High School and the Middle School, and then transported to the other schools. The enormous cost prohibits building a kitchen facility at each school. While it was agreed that the federal assistance was attractive, some board members felt that Washington C.H. residents might not want the in-school lunch program, especially in light of the cost.

The board finally decided to table any action concerning the program until the parents of students could be surveyed through flyers sent home with the students. They noted that if such a program were implemented, all children would have to remain at the school for their lunch hour.

One of the advantages noted was that the state is pressing all school systems to adopt in-school lunch programs and may make such programs mandatory in the future. Only schools with such services can be included in state or federal free lunch projects for the underprivileged.

FOUR CONCERNED mothers approached the board to discuss the possibilities of a physical education-

A similar bill has been recommended for approval by a Senate committee but is being kept aside until Bowers' bill comes over from the House to determine whether differences can be resolved.

Senators, who returned from weekend recess for a Monday night floor session, scheduled a vote today on a bill that exempts Ohio's disabled veterans from having to purchase hunting, trapping, or fishing licenses.

Two bills were approved and sent to the House at the Monday night session. They permit township trustees to be reimbursed for expenses when attending township conferences and meetings, and revise statutes under which animal and livestock owners can be reimbursed by counties for animals killed by stray dogs. Such payments are made, after verification, from county dog and kennel funds.

Sen. Robert T. Secrest, D-20 Cambridge, introduced a bill that would provide free auto license plates for Ohio's six living Congressional Medal of Honor winners. "They deserve it. A lot of states, including Texas and Florida, already have done it," Secrest

In other developments, House Finance Chairman Myrl Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville, said it now appears that there won't be a House floor vote on the state's two-year budget bill until next week. Leaders had hoped to bring it up late this week, possibly at an unusual Friday session.

The chairman said some details remained to be worked out and that he wanted members to have time to study the big spending measure-about $12 billion-during the weekend.

Reportly, majority Democrats are trying to work out a modest increase in payments to recipients of Aid to ependent Children.

Shoemaker pointed out that Ohio currently is making payments below the national average with benefits totaling a maximum $209 a month for a family of four.

Appeals court upholds decision ordering removal of area home

The Second District Court of Appeals has upheld Fayette County Common Pleas Court Judge Evelyn W. Coffman's judgment against a Fayette County couple trying to win the right to remain in their recently completed

The judgment ordered Mr. and Mrs. Cal Hayward to remove their $55,000 single-story home on U.S. 62-S because of a restriction in the deed to the land on which it is located.

THE HAYWARDS originally owned a 2.6-acre tract of land on U.S. 62-S near Mark Road. A restriction on the land deed stated that only a private single dwelling for one family could be located on the property.

However, the Haywards sold their home and two acres of the land. They retained 0.6 acre of land on which they constructed another home. Claude E. Rhoad, the previous land owner who wrote the deed restriction and Neal Wright, the next door neighbor, filed suit against Hayward after construction began. They claimed the construction violated the deed restriction and said the construction changed the topography of the land, causing drainage problems on adjacent land.

The case was heard by Judge Coffman, who ordered Hayward to remove the home and restore the land to its original condition.

Hayward's attorneys, Conrad Curren of Greenfield, Carroll McKinney of Hillsboro, and R.T. O'Brien of Columbus, had appealed the case in view of 15 alleged errors on the part of the trial court.

The opinion rendered by appeals Judge Joseph Kerns begins by stating that the district court is limited in scope. It cannot reverse judgment on the weight of evidence except where matters of law are involved.

In eight of the "errors" cited by Hayward's attorneys, the evidence is almost undisputed; and in five others, although the evidence is conflicting, it is sufficient to sustain the required degree of proof, Judge Kerns said.

Since these arguments are based on the weight of evidence and not on law, the district court overruled each of the first 13 objections to the trial court's

The 14th point raised in the appeal was a claim that the deed restriction simply meant that no apartment buildings could be constructed. Hayward's attorneys believed that as long as no multi-family dwellings were constructed, compliance with the deed restriction had been maintained.

Robert L. Brubaker, a Washington C.H. attorney, who represented the plaintiffs in the action, interpreted the restriction as meaning that only one home could be built on each of the original lots. They said the reason Hayward's lot was so large was that the lay of the land would only accommodate one home.

Judge Kerns' opinion stated that when there is a question as to the interpretation of deed restriction, the court must assume that which is least restrictive to the present owner, but the language in this case leaves no margin for question. Thus, he upheld Judge Coffman's ruling that the new home violated the restriction.

The last point raised by Hayward's counsel was their request for a new trial which had earlier been denied by sold the home and adjacent property for $62,500, which was $10,000 more than he had paid for it four years

Defense attorneys argued that this unquestionably proved that the value of the adjacent home had not been injured by the construction of the new house. They argued that in spite of the plaintiffs' claim of a drainage problem created by the construction, the value of the property had risen, not declined.

JUDGE KERNS, agreed with Judge Coffman's refusal to grant a new trial. He stated the sale of the home with a $10,000 profit after four years could have no significant bearing on the outcome of the action, and therefore the trial court ruling was sustained. Judge Kerns further noted that although the order to remove the $50,000 home seems harsh on the surface, the severity of the consequences are of the defendants' own making. He said Hayward was informed of the suit shortly after construction began, and continued in spite of the pending litigation. "The harshness attributed to the judgment of the trial court was, therefore, a product of the defendants' own creativeness," he said. Judge Paul Sherer and Robert McBride, seated on the three-member appeals court panel, concurred with Kerns opinion and rulings.

The district appeals court action was formally recorded in Fayette County Common Pleas Court Monday and an appeal to the Ohio Supreme Court is Old-fashioned town meeting set May 31

'The town meeting is a very typical example of what made this nation great."

This is not a quote from pamphleteer and patriot Thomas Paine, circa 1775, but from the Rev. T. Mark Dove, pastor of the Grace United Methodist Church, who is a foremost proponent of recapturing an old-fashioned town meeting in Fayette County.

Rev. Dove met with a group of supporters of the town meeting project in his Circle Avenue home Monday night in much the same fashion as conspirators met in private assemblies two hundred

The group resolved that under the guidance of the Institute for Cultural Affairs, a town meeting for Fayette County residents will be held May 31 at Miami Trace High School.

"Fayette County will be the sixth of 5,000 locations in the country and the first in Ohio to celebrate our country's two hundredth birthday examining in workshop sessions what made us great as a nation and what we need to do to maintain that stature," Rev. Dove told those in attendance Monday night.

The format of the proposed town meeting is to begin the sessions at 9 a.m. and continue until 4:30 p.m. "We want about 260 people from all walks of life to communicate about our greatest asset — our nation," he said. Rev. Dove added that further details on the town meeting will be completed in the near future. Other members of the committee who met with Rev. Dove Monday were Elton Rhoad, farmer; John Lachat, Riten Industries, Bloomingburg; Don ConChemco, Inc., Sabina; Kenneth Craig, retiredteacher-historian; Bill Black, Chappel Door Co., Washington C.H.; and Bruce Galloway, Ohio Bell Telephone Co.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market was unevenly lower today as profit taking stalled the rally of the past four sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 52 points in the past four sessions, had pulled back 5.24 to 850.36 by noon today. Gainers and losers were about even in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers traced the decline to the normal desire of traders to cash in on some profits after a sharp advance in prices.

Times Mirror, among the volume leaders on the Big Board, rose 1/4 to 1934. A 100,000-share block traded at that price. At the American Stock Exchange, the Syntex, the Amex's most active issue, slipped 1/8 to 40.

With no military strings

Congress is plainly determined to give President Ford even standby authority to use American armed forces in Southeast Asia. This position was underscored by House rejection of a $327 million aid bill for Vietnamese refugees. It was not this aid that the 246-162 majority objected to, but the fact that the still contained authorization for use of combat

. Congress is not paranoid on this subject. It has been made wary by experience. The House paid attention to Rep. Philip L. Burton's reminder that in 1964 President Lyndon B. Johnson was granted standby authority to use troops, and soon made use of it. The lawmakers also remember keenly the abuses of power that finally resulted in the firm stipulation against com-mitment of armed forces abroad without specific congressional approval.

With the tainted bill disposed of, the way is now cleared for a measure devoted solely to provision of aid for the refugees. Congress assuredly will now address itself to this without delay, confident that the American people approve of helping war victims but oppose any mechanism for further military involvement.

In 1972 a thoroughly disarrayed Supreme Court (there were nine opinions) almost held the death penalty unconstitutional as a violation of the Sixth Amendment's injunction against cruel and unusual punishments. The law that emerged from this shambles seemed to indicate that execution was unconstitutional if the judge or jury were given any leeway: that is, if the judge could choose between death or life imprisonment or the jury recommend mercy. If fulfilled and a number of states have passed laws attempting to do so — this strange requirement would appear to make for a harsher criminal code. Now there is

In the meantime, those concerned with problems of crime and punishment should get a copy of Harvard Professor James Q. Wilson's new book, "Thinking About Crime" (Basic Books). Wilson, who states frankly that he is not a prophet with answers, proceeds with merciless logic to undermine most of the conventional wisdom (of both the right and the left) on just about every law-and-order issue. way to end crime is to eliminate poverty (most poor people, black or white, never become criminals). On the other, he makes mincemeat out of the cliches from the right that we need more cops and public hangings tstatistics indicate that there were trivial differences in the homicide rate between states with and without the death penalty).

For years I have been suspicious of the notion that the criminal code does not deter people from engaging in crime. The statistics that are usually trotted out indicate that 80-plus per cent of all homicides occur among family and friends. For instance, a husband gets furious at his wife for telling him on their return from a party that he was a drunken boor and grabs a kitchen knife. Certainly, the argument runs, this sort of reaction would not be deterred by the death penalty (or anything else). But what about the missing precincts? What about the husbands who under this uxorial blast meditated on the kitchen knife but didn't grab it? Is there anybody so inhuman (or saintly) that he or she on some occasion has not wanted to kill somebody? In other words, how can we know whether or not deterrence works when our whole sample is composed of those who were not held back?

Moreover, Wilson adds it is almost impossible to make any valid generalizations on this subject because of the chaos which exists in our court system. The courts, he emphasizes, are not really engaged in separating the innocent from the guilty (the overwhelming percentage of those arraigned plead guilty), but in trying to determine the proper sentence. Since there is no pattern — a three-time loser may get probation; a first offender three years — the potential criminal has no basis for calculating the risks involved in, say, burglary. Beyond this, nobody has figured out whether prisons are designed to punish or to

I confess that the aspect of Wilson's analysis wich appeals to me is thatunlike most of the academic experts on crime - he worries about the victims. A couple of years ago I listened to a psychiatrist expand at great length on the tragic background of a local murderer. Finally I had to ask, "But what about the future of the girl he murdered?" To understand is to understand, not to forgive, and I have always wondered if that psychiatrist would have been primarily concerned with the broken family of a guy sticking a knife in his ribs.

Thus Wilson makes the perfectly commonsense point about prisons: they may not deter, they may not rehabilitate, but they do serve to keep a number of extremely anti-social types out of circulation. A felon in Walpole (the Mass. prison distinguished by the rate at which the inmates impose the death penalty on each other) may blow himself up making a bomb, but he doesn't take any innocent bystanders

This column can only touch on the many striking points Wilson highlights his cold-eyed examination of the myths about heroin alone is worth the price of admission. Reading it is a bracing intellectual exercise.

Ohio National Guard training sites eyed

By PERRY SMITH Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The whoosh of artillery shells and the sound of machine gun fire may sound some day soon in the eerie stillness of the coal stripped land of southeastern Ohio.

The administration of Gov. James A. Rhodes is considering buying land in the strip mine belt as a training site for the Ohio National Guard, which has been taking its summer training in Michigan.

"There are six or seven areas that are suitable," said Chan Cochran, the governor's aide. "Five of them are stripped land."

Maj. Gen. James Clem, commanding officer of the ONG, said he hoped to locate adequate area to train up to 4,000 men in tactical procedures. He is reluctant to say what areas are under

"That's understandable," said Cochran. "He doesn't want to drive the price of land up down there."

on the project. He said a report should be completed by Oct. 1, 1975. A later study will delve into the cost of reclamation. Clem said a possible drawback to the idea is mineral rights on the land. If they are contained in the deed, Clem said it could make costs prohibitive. Rhodes' prime consideration in obtaining an Ohio site, Cochran said, is one of economics. "The governor sent a letter to General Clem pointing out that about $20 million worth of business goes to Michiganwith the National Guard each summer." he said. Clem believes the stripped land could be natural for guard training.

For 15 to 20 years after stripping, Cochran said, the land is good only for grazing. The stripped land, he said, could be used for Seabee training, road and bridge construction and would be wide enough for heavy firearm prac-

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN Woman's gripe;

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old, liberated woman. About sex: I've tried it, and I don't like it. I don't dislike it, but it's just not worth all the trouble.

I've been married, and it didn't work out. Sex was never a very important part of my like, but most people think something is "wrong" with a person who doesn't have a strong sex drive. People seem to feel proud if they are sexually overactive (and can "perform" well), and they feel ashamed if they can either take it or leave it.

I am not frigid. On the contrary, I am very affectionate. I can lie in my lover's arms and enjoy the feeling of closeness, but if it doesn't culminate in the sex act, it's all right with me.

Am I weird? Or do you understand what I'm saying?

CONTENT IN COLORADO DEAR CONTENT: I understand what you're saying, and you're not weird at all. I think you are an intelligent, honest woman who values love above sex. No need to apologize for

DEAR ABBY: I just married a beautiful widower after about a year of courtship. She had been a widow for five years, and I've been divorced for nine. She is a very clean person and keeps an immaculate house.

Is this correct? WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Technically, a person is entitled to only one mother in-law at a time, and even though it's refreshing to hear about a woman who adores her exhusband's mother so much that nothing can destroy that friendship, YOUR mother will be your wife's mother-inlaw. Make old-time banana breads

It's true, someone is always taking the joy out of life. But for a cook who is just lifting a fragrant loaf of banana bread out of the oven, everything is at that moment perfect. Set the bread down to cool. It has to cool completely to slice well. And then comes the feast delicious homemade slices with butter or cream cheese — a pleasure for everyone in the house. You may have admired recently the interestingly-textured breads that are featured in the health food departments of stores or at special places where whole grains and such items are sold. These unusual breads can now be yours to make at home without special trips to special stores. Banana Oat Bread is made with ordinary ingredients in anybody's supermarket but what a wonderful, old-timey texture this bread has, and that fresh banana flavor lasts the life of the loaf. Perhaps we take it too much for granted that the banana is usually the most moderate priced fresh fruit in the store, as the Banana Bunch, industrysponsored center for consumer information, reminds us. We really ought to wake up to this prize bonanza and use bananas a lot more whether out of hand, in desserts, hot or cold, or in delicious breads that keep longer because the bananas help the batter to Another inspired example of breads from old-fashioned days is Cornmeal Banana Bread which is also made with everyday ingredients from the grocery store yet has such wonderful taste and texture. Try this bread toasted, for breakfast. It's good with any meal, and will help to make a special event of the occasion no matter how plain the food. BANANA OAT BREAD ½ cup butter or margarine ½ cup sugar

2 eggs 1 cup unsifted all-pupose flour 1 teaspoon baking soda

1/2 teaspoon salt ½ teaspoon cinnamon

11/2 cups mashed ripe bananas (about 5 medium) 1/4 cup milk 1 cup quick or regular oats, uncooked

½ cup raisins In large bowl cream butter with sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs. Mix flour, baking soda, salt and cinnamon. Add to creamed mixture alternately with bananas and milk. Stir in oats and raisins. Turn into greased 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan. Bake in 350 degrees F. oven 1 hour, or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes, turn out of pan and cool completely.

YIELD: 1 loaf.

Controlling board OKs lottery contract controllers have narrowly approved an overdue $230,000 lottery commission contract with a New Jersey computer firm which devises games of chance for Ohio's legalized gambling operation.

The contract, retroactive to Jan. 2 with Mathematica, Inc. of Princeton, N.J., was authorized 4-3 after State Controlling Board members grilled a lottery official about a controversial campaign contribution.

Robert Cresente, assistant administration manager for the lottery, said he had "heard rumors," but nothing else about a $1,000 contribution made by a Mathematica official to former Gov. John J. Gilligan's unsuccessful re-election campaign.

The donation was disclosed shortly after the commission announced the new contract with Mathematica.

Cresente said presentation of the contract was ready last December, but was delayed because of a "technical problem" with the administrative services department over the computer programming.

While that was being resolved, Cresente said, "we were in sore need of their services" and Mathematica agreed to work on games and program computers to operate them, pending approval of the contract.

Cresente said the commission expected to gross $10 million above usual receipts during the 10-week run of a new Mathematica game which begins this week. "On the basis of sheer economics, we feel it's worth it for this game alone," he said.

The lottery official was also quizzed on commission operations, profits and advertising practices.

He claimed the lottery was close to meeting its projected earnings and should provide about $32 million profit for the state general fund by the June 30 end of the fiscal year.

Cresente acknowledged that a controversial promotional billboard had been taken down after adverse public reaction. The billboard touted the lottery because, "it beats work."
The board approved 4-2 a $131,000 request it had rejected last month for construction of trails for golf carts at Salt Fork State Park in Guernsey County. Rep. A. G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, said the "path will enable more people to use the course so it may pay for itself." Lancione said the trail would be of particular benefit to the elderly.

The board members also voted to provide $295,000 for a picnic area at Salt Fork.

The Ohio Educational TV Network Commission won approval for more than $1 million in revenue sharing funds to install "translator" power facilities that will strengthen network signals in several areas.

A spokesman said the stronger signal would provide better reception in the Court OKs removal of causeway

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— The 1st Ohio District Court of Appeals upheld a lower court order for the Newport Concrete Co. to remove a concrete causeway from the Little Miami River because it is in violation of state conservation laws.

The appellate court upheld a lower court decision in a suit brought by the State of Ohio and several conservation groups including Little Miami Inc.

The opponents contended the firm stopped navigation of the river, tabbed for inclusion in the federal Wild and Scenic Rivers bill, with the access road to its gravel operations on an island in Anderson Township in eastern Hamilton County.

The causeway restricted flow of the river through three concrete pipes, the action said. The state also reported a youth was drowned when he was washed into one of the pipes.

The state further contended the causeway restricts free passage of boats and canoes and has affected the business of a canoe livery.

The appellate court ruled that the causeway is a hindrance to navigation and must be removed.

The appellate court also noted there has been an increase of public use of the stream for recreation, the state needs to provide such facilities and the state must protect available natural resources for public use.

Teacher strike picketing cut

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)-A court order restricted mass picketing today in the Ross School District where teachers walked out Monday to protest the firing of three officers of the Ross Education Association.

Butler County Common Pleas Court Judge Robert L. Marrs late Monday issued the restraining order and set a hearing May 15 on a request for a temporary injunction.

REA President Timothy Wolfe said the system called substitutes to replace 55-to-60 teachers who stayed off the job. The system employs 114 teachers.

Orient institute repairs urged

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - A structural engineer has recommended that the state take immediate action to repair deteriorated building supports at the Orient State Institute for the mentally retarded.

In a report to institution officials, the Columbus structural engineering firm of Paul J. Ford and Co. said many of the institute's structures suffer from water damage.

In some buildings, the firm said, walls are pulling away from roofs, wooden supports are rotting and steel supports are rusting.

The study was made last November. It was released Monday in a state auditor's examination of Orient's

A spokesman for the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation said he remembered the study being commissioned but could not remember the state department receiving a copy. The report was mailed to Orient officials last November.

The report, written by John T. Wilson of the firm, urged quick corrective

"If these problems are not attended to in the near future, they will only get worse at an increasingly rapid pace, and serious structural damage may result," Wilson said.

He singled out Doran Hall, a residence building, where water damage is causing plaster to peel and wood to rot.

"The most economical solution may be to tear down Doran Hall completely and move the residents to another cottage," he said. "Doran Hall has already deteriorated so badly that it is probably not economically feasible to save it."

He added, however, that engineers would like to take a closer look at the before recommending demolition.

He said the Orient administration building is in fairly good shape, but is suffering water damage.

"If conditions remain as they are, the roof structure and the beams and columns supporting the roof will deteriorate very rapidly," he said. "There is evidence that this may be starting."

In other audit reports issued Monday. the state auditor:

-Recommended that a private account for the Management Center Inc. at Bowling Green State University be abolished and the fund merged with the university's general accounts.

The auditor noted that the nonprofit corpration takes in fees and spends mondy, but makes no full disclosure of sources and amounts of income.

The firm, a part of the business administration college at BGSU, sponsors seminars for businessmen. -Filed findings for recovery against two officials of the Village of Orient.

> Salary payments of $109 to village clerk-treasurer Ruby I. Weese and $97 to Councilman Harold Wilson were ruled illegal.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers presently is studying the possibility of building a new lock at th Soo or combining two smaller locks into one giant

Only one of the five locks at Sault Ste. Marie is capable of handling the thousand-foot freighters which are beginning to ply the lakes.

Trimble said the move toward larger vessels points up a need for renovations at the locks. He said the big ships also need wider navigation channels on the St. Mary's River.

He said his group isn't demanding the canal, but added: "We think it is an alternative to renovation of the Soo locks that should be explored." The proposed canal would be only 38

Then ships would pass through an existing waterway consisting of the Au Train River, Au Train Lake, Mud Lake, the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Co. water storage basin, the Whitefish River, and then into Little Bay de Noc on Lake Michigan. The canal would trim 300 miles off the trip from Lake Superior iron mines to the Lake Michigan steel plants. It also would circumvent the St. Mary's River, where ice breaking in the winter causes problems for island residents. No costs have been estimated for either a new canal or renovations on the Soo locks. The idea for a central U.P. canal first surfaced in the 1820s and also was considered as a federal works project in the mid 1930s During World War II, the War

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Moe Howard, 78, the last member of the Three Stooges comedy team, died Sunday night of lung cancer.

Physical fitness director speaker at Kiwanis Club

The regional director for the Physical Fitness Institute of America, Richard C. Seitz, addressed the regular dinner meeting of the Washington C. H. Kiwanis Club Monday night in the Lafayette Inn. He discussed the trend toward inactivity in the United States.

Seitz said that in recent years Americans have created a monster in the form of automation which he noted does 96 per cent of the labor. The average citizen doing his daily routine exercises only certain muscles of the body, leaving other muscle fibers to go "stale." "As a consequence, we all suffer from 'lack-of-motion' disease," he said.

The speaker cited statistics that disclosed one million people will die in the next year due to heart failure and other cardio-vascular ailments. Many of these deaths could be avoided through proper diet and exercise, he added.

He stated that few Americans follow a daily exercise program because it is found to be boring and time-consuming. However, he then demonstrated a small tension bar which is designed to assist in exercising. The bar can be used in a variety of ways so that almost any muscle of the body can be exercised without leaving the living room of the home.

A variation of the isometric exercise, the bar aids in exercises which pit one muscle of the body against another so that both are quickly placed in a state of exhaustion. It is after the muscles have become fatigued that most conditioning occurs, Seitz explained.

ditioning occurs, Seitz explained.

The device has been included in the exercise program at many high schools and colleges, he said, and noted that it has also been used by astronauts in the Apollo space program.

In a brief business meeting, the Kiwanis Club voted to underwrite the cost of attendance at the Teen Drug Institute of one Washington Senior High School student. The institute meets at Ohio Weslyan University and the cost is $45 per student.

Dick Maddux, who brought his father William Maddux as a guest, presented Jerry Begin with his eight-year attendance pin.

Rules violated by area tavern

GREENFIELD — The Mini-Bar, Ohio 41-S, has been found in violation of two liquor regulations by the Ohio Department of Liquor Control.

The department found Marion D. Haines, doing business as the Mini-Bar, had possessed an open container of whiskey while not the holder of a proper permit. Both violations occurred Oct. 19, 1974.

The bar faces a 14-days suspension of its permit, but the penalty will not be imposed until Oct. 18, 1975, and if the bar is not convicted of another violation before that time, the penalty will be remitted.

never played any other sport. It was important, he said, that a team be organized in the very near future if it was to participate in interscholastic competition next year. "Other teams are now in the process of finalizing their schedules," he said. He added that William Martin, physical education instructor at the Middle School, would be willing to coach the Board member Fred Domenico moved that the board purchase the mat as soon as a contract with a coach could be signed, but the motion died for lack of a second. Board members noted that in light of the other programs facing their budget, the athletic department should find its own resources for the purchase of the mat.

ATHLETIC PERSONNEL were discussed and appointments were considered for the director and assistant director of the athletic department. Maurice Pfeifer, head football coach, was named as athletic director for next year, succeeding Rankin. Carmen Frogale will again serve as assistant director.

It was noted that Rankin had offered to serve as interim director after the resignation of Robert Bane last year. Board members felt that he had done an excellent job as director and asked him at the meeting if he would consider taking the job for another year, but he declined.

Although it was noted that Pfeifer already carried a sizable burden as head football coach, he was chosen by a 4-1 vote. Nestor explained that he had reservations in recommending Pfeifer for the post, but that it seemed the best solution to a bad situation.

It is impractical for the school to employ a full-time or even a half-time director. Hence, it must be one of the school's present employes. While he was hesitant to have Pfeifer's time as a counselor reduced by his additional duties, it seemed worse to have a classroom teacher called away from 30 students to handle the incoming calls and appointments which require the presence of the athletic director.

Mrs. Dovona Stickley was named to head the Middle School intramural program for girls while John Taylor, a Washington Senior High School graduate, was hired to teach geography and coach track at the Middle School.

IN OTHER business, the board:

- approved reimbursement of the expenses of several faculty members who attended professional meetings;

granted the Fayette County Board of Elections permission to use the elementary schools as polling places for the June 3 special election; accepted with regret the resignations of Victor Pontious, speech and social studies teacher, and Mrs. Elaine Cockerill, secretary to the superintendent;

renewed the contract with the old Security Life Insurance Co. for medical coverage for athletes and other students; approved a contract between the city of Washington C. H. and the Community Education program which makes Community Education responsible for the summer recreation program;

submitted a list of maintenance projects to be completed this summer; authorized the superintendent to inquire into the cost of a new tractor for mowing the grass and shoveling snow;

approved Jon Creamer and Terry Feick as instructors of the summer driver's education course.

VIENNA, Austria (AP) - Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, former primate of the Hungarian Catholic Church and onetime major figure of East-West controversy, died here today, the Catholic Press Service reported. He was 83.

A bitter enemy of communism, Cardinal Mindszenty was long a refugee in the United States mission in Budapest. Communists had tortured him and sentenced him to life imprisonment in 1949 for fighting the Red takeover of his country.

He spent 23 years of his life, except for four days, either in prison or as a refugee in the U.S. mission, which he garian government granted him am-

He soon moved to Vienna to be closer to his homeland. Last May he made a trip to the United States.

The cardinal took refuge in the American mission during the 1956 Hungarian revolution.

Pope Paul VI removed the cardinal as primate of Hungary and archbishop of Esztergom on Feb. 5, 1974. But Cardinal Mindszenty emphatically denied that he stepped down voluntarily.

He was a symbol of lifelong resistance to Nazi and Communist tyranny.

The rabbits were discovered by Tony Ciavarella last week in a nest which had been built inside a coiled up hose. As soon as Sweetie found the nest, she wrapped herself around and began to Cambodia's new Communist-backed rulers said today they would respect the national and territorial integrity of neighboring states but would not allow any foreign troops on their soil.

Cambodia's neighbors are South Vietnam, Laos and Thailand. It was not known whether the reference to foreign troops included the North Vietnamese.

A Khmer Rouge broadcast from Phnom Penh said Cambodia would continue to seek good relations with countries of Asia, Africa and North and South America, but did not mention setting up diplomatic ties or requests for foreign aid.

"We will work hard for ourselves," the broadcast said. In Bangkok, the Thai government decided to hold on to all Vietnamese aircraft brought into the country by fleeing Vietnamese refugees and urged the U.S. government not to remove any from Thai soil. The decision came after the United States spirited away at least 25 South Vietnamese warplanes, U.S.

sources and witnesses said. Meanwhile, at Utapao air base in the northern part of the country, the United States launched an airlift of Cambodian refugees to America, including former Cambodian president Sau Kham Khoy. Khoy, who was evacuated from Phnom Penh before the fall of Phnom Penh, told newsmen he would live in America and "will not go back to Cambodia until there is freedom there.'

Hanoi's Vietnam News Agency reported that the forces of the Revolutionary Government in Saigon have taken six islands in the controversial Spratly archipelago in the South China Sea, and "all the puppet forces on these islands were put out of action." It said the islands were taken between April 14 and April 29. China, the Philippines, the former Saigon regime, Taiwan and Malaysia have all claimed the islands, where oil reserves are believed lying offshore.

At the same time, Saigon radio appealed to all fighting men who had left South Vietnam to return to the country and bring back aircraft and other war equipment and surrender to the new

The broadcast also said all islands in Vietnamese waters had been "completely liberated" and that prisoners held by the former government on some of them have been freed and were returning to mainland Vietnam. The islands included Phu Coq and Con Son, the latter the site of a large penal colony where prisoners were held in dreaded "tiger cages."

Former President Duong Van "Big" Minh of South Vietnam said overwhelming North Vietnamese and Viet Cong military superiority left him no alternative but to surrender the country unconditionally.

In an interview published Monday in the North Vietnamese army newspaper and broadcast by Hanoi Radio, Minh said, "We sincerely rejoiced at your speedy victory.

'The Saigon military forces were no longer in a position to offer resistance. We knew the strength of the Revolutionary Government and the liberation army. The tank units ... were really formidable.

"In these circumstances, surrender unconditionally was the only possible decision.'

The broadcast said the interview was conducted May 1 — the day after the surrender — at the presidential palace in Saigon where the new regime released Minh and 15 other political figures from custody.

In other Indochina developments:

-The Ford administration requested an additional $507 million in aid for Indochina refugees, but prospects for congressional approval are uncertain.

-The State Department said it has learned that the new Khmer Rouge government in Cambodia has killed about 80 leaders and wives identified with the Cambodian government that fell three weeks ago.

-The Pentagon said the United States has started removing many of the 120 U.S.supplied military planes flown to Thailand by escaping South Vietnamese air force pilots.

After four days of victory celebrations, Hanoi workers have resumed reconstruction work in the bomb-devastated North Vietnamese capital, while in South Vietnam the Revolutionary Government continued imposing its system of order on the country.

spelled defeat for the Washington Blue Lion diamond men in the first round of sectional tournament play Monday against Thornville Sheridan.

The Generals from Thornville got five runs in the first two innings all unearned and they held on for a 9-6 victory.

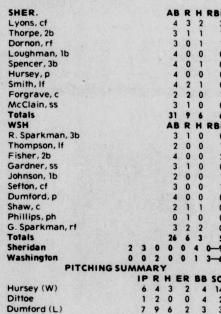

Blue Lion pitcher Larry Dumford allowed just six hits and two earned runs on the day, but the Washington defense had too many holes in it as Dumford was tagged with the loss.

The Blue Lion players had trouble at the plate as well as in the field as Sheridan pitchers Jerry Hursey and Sam Dittoe combined for 16 strikeouts and a three-hit performance.

Hursey, a 6-foot-3 fireballer, got relief help in the seventh to post the win upping Sheridan's record to 15-4.

Gib Sparkman had two of the Lions' three hits and Scott Sefton made three brilliant plays in centerfield to be the only bright spots in Washington's loss.

Washington's next game is slated for Wednesday against rival Miami Trace at Trace's home field.

drew up the previous Parnelli Jones team models, but of a more streamlined design. It's smaller than the popular Eagles and McLarens, and powered by a modified Cosworth Ford Formula I engine. "If it works out, I have the advantage," said Unser of the edge he is hoping will get him into the winner's circle here for a record-tying third time. Since his triumphs in 1970 and 1971 and a second in 1972, his efforts here have netted him no better than 18th place.

But even if the Parnelli-Cosworth combination works, Al isn't going to enjoy sorting out the problems.

'I never have liked to test new cars," he said. "It's really hard work, and it can be very frustrating.

"I would rather just unload the cars and be ready to go.'

Earl Weaver knew how to hook the Catfish. He got the weatherman to throw out the line and reel him in.

For seven innings in Baltimore Monday night, Weaver's Orioles flailed away at Hunter's pitches. In all that time, all they could manage against him and the rest of the New York Yankees was four hits and one run. It was clearly a time for a little strategy. "We talked about it in the locker room before the game," said Bobby Grich, whose eighth-inning bunt-and Expos 3, Cubs 2 Pepe Mangual and Larry Parrish homered to boost the Expos past Chicago and cut the Cubs' NL East lead over idle New York to 31/2 games. Barry Foote walked in the third and Mangual hit his first homer. Parrish connected for his second homer in the sixth.

CINCINNATI (AP) — The first three batters in the Cincinnati Reds lineup are hitting, and complaining well so far this season.

Leadoff man Pete Rose is batting .306 and is worried that he's not scoring

Dave Concepcion is batting .343 since being moved up to the second slot in the lineup, but he's upset that he has to be more selective in his pitch selection.

Joe Morgan is batting .378— thirdbest in the National League—and he's frustrated that he's been walked so much during the early part of the year. While the Reds leadoff trio have been able to console themselves with their hitting, the Reds usually reliable powerpack of Johnny Bench and Tony Perez have had reason to complain. Perez is batting only .192, while Bench, despite an impressive array of runs batted in, is hitting .279. "If I was hitting I would have 30 runs batted in," lamented Bench who has driven in 20 runs so far this year. It is easy to see the truth in Bench's statement. The first three batters in the Reds lineup have been on base a total of 157 times so far this season. Bench and Perez, who are both tied for second in

Tigers top Cincy Reds in exhibition

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Detroit Tigers used four hurlers Monday night and held the Cincinnati Reds to just two hits in a benefit baseball contest.

The challenge now is to do the same against the Milwaukee Brewers and home-run king Hank Aaron. Aaron will be making his first Detroit appearance in a regular season game tonight after smacking a homer in the 1971 All-Star game, which was held in Detroit.

The Brewers stopped the Tigers twice last week and handed them an embarrassing 17-3 loss in the final game of the set.

Milwaukee, which leads Detroit by two games, was idle Monday.

In Monday's exhibition with the Reds, regulars Ray Bare and Tom Makowski, and nonroster hurlers Fred Arroyo and Mark Lemonjello combined to shut out the Cincinnati Reds 4-0.

The game drew 30,454 at Riverfront Stadium for the benefit of amateur baseball Bare, the winner, has a single victory in regular season play.

Detroit opened the scoring in the fifth inning with three runs on back-to-back doubles by Dan Meyer and Nate Colbert and singles by Leon Roberts, Aurelio Rodriguez and Gene Michael. The Tigers added a run in the seventh on a hit by Mickey Stanley, who stole second and scored on Meyers' third hit of the game.

AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — As we all know, the networks next season will air shows suitable for "family viewing" in the first hour of their evening schedules. It's a noble attempt to reduce the amount of TV violence.

Tuesday, May 6, 1975 Washington C. H. (O.)

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT

Originally, the "family" rule applied only to entertainment shows. But in an effort to further tone down violence on TV, the networks now plan to apply it to their coverage of major sports events

That's the word from Snidely Foon, a TV observer who says he learned of the new plan from a network censor. He said pro football will be the first sport directly affected by the family viewing rule for sports.

"There is to be no blocking or tackling shown on TV until 9 p.m.," Foon said. "If it happens, the networks are to show excerpts from 'Mister Ed' until the violence abates.

"And if the teams persist in blocking and tackling during the family viewing hour, Howard Cosell is supposed to ignore the game altogether and interview himself until 9 o'clock.' Foon said baseball won't pose too many problems. "It doesn't have much violence

although the networks have been told to cut to a picture of Kate Smith when it appears a runner may wipe out the second baseman during a double play,"

The problem of hockey, where fights always occur, "is being resolved by only televising the games of nice teams," he added.

Foon said the matter of fouling in basketball is being handled "by requiring the players to say 'May I have the ball, please?' until normal play resumes at 9 o'clock."

Does the family viewing hour signal the end of boxing telecasts early at

"Not at all," Foon said. "The net-works are telling the boxers not to strike each other until 9 o'clock. They may dance about and glare a bit at each other, but no hitting. "If there are fisticuffs before 9, the network covering the bout will only show Myron Floren playing his accordion until the family hour ends." Muhammad Ali and George Foreman are believed pleased with this new arrangement, Foon confided. Then he was led away by a big man in a white jacket.

Auto repair costs bring warning

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - "Hundreds of compaints" of unexpectedly high auto repair bills have prompted the Ohio Consumer Protection Division to advise that motorists demand written estimates before repairs are made.

The most recent bulletin of the division said dealers must provide a written estimate if repair costs will exceed $25 and must obtain written authorization to make necessary repairs which will exceed 10 per cent of the estimate.

Division officials are "seriously concerned about reports that many Ohio automobile repair shops, including automobile dealers and service stations, are asking consumers to waive their rights to written estimates," the bulletin said.

In addition, the new ruling stipulates that consumers are entitled to demand that suppliers:

-Indicate if there will be a charge for a service call or reassembly, regardless of whether repairs are -Give the consumer a written and itemized list of repairs performed and the reasons for such repairs, including charges for parts and labor, describing which parts are new, used or rebuilt.

—Inform the consumer, before the first cost estimate, if used parts will not be returned to him. Violators of the rule should be reported to local consumer protection agencies or the state division, the bulletin said. Urge U.N. role

Did you know you can often tell a lot about a guy by looking at his photographic efforts? Well, I think you can, anyway. For example, last week at Rotary Club Dr. Shaw was there to give the cancer story. First off, Shaw is one of the most articulate speakers you'll hear simply because he knows what he wants to say, and he knows how to say it. Simple? Not at all — it takes a well-ordered mind to do that.

In addition the Doctor used visuals in the form of 35 mm slides to graphically present the facts of the presentation. Now the slides he used were simple and right to the point. They beautifully got across the info. Again the guy knew what he wanted to show, and even more important, he knew how to show it. The camera work was meticulously executed and some of the original art work was nicely handled by a member of the family.

Now I'd have been impressed by his presentation technique if the topic had been TRADE WIND PATTERNS OF THE PACIFIC or TOOTH DEVELOPMENT OF THE CENTRAL AMERICAN PRIMATES, but his topic was one that is vital to every guy in that room. Shaw goes further than just being a dedicated person; there are several of those floating around. When you find a citizen in your community that has that dedication and ability, be thankful he's around.

Oh yes, while on the topic of the Washington Rotary Club, don't forget the Fish Fry Friday. I'll see you there.

Oh yes, there's one other thing that bugs me. Why isn't a guy like Dr. Shaw a Rotarian instead of a Lion?

'But when I told you it was all over between us. Warren, I had forgotten about the dance Saturday

Pulitzer Prize won by Xenia's Gazette

XENIA, Ohio (AP) - The Xenia Daily Gazette, which published continously despite a tornado that killed 32 persons on April 3, 1974, has been awarded a Pulitzer Prize for local general reporting.

"Our whole saga is one of a lot of courage, guts and dependability for all 80 persons who work for us," said Jack Jordan, editor and general manager of the Gazette.

The newspaper continued publishing for the town of 25,000, after the tornado hit at 4:40 p.m. April 3, using the printing presses of the nearby Middletown Journal, another member of the Chew Newspapers of Ohio.

The Gazette was cited in the award, announced Monday at Columbia University, for its coverage of the tornado "under enormous difficulties.

Shortly after the tornado hit, the paper changed to morning publication when its carriers had to begin to go to school in the afternoon to compensate for destroyed school buildings. The carriers are now in class between noon and 6 p.m.

"We never missed publication. Our building was knocked out," Jordan said. His dozen reporters worked in a office that was without utilities, and was badly damaged, allowing the wind to blow through it and rain and snow pour in.

When the tornado hit, carriers were delivering the afternoon newspapers. "A great number of our papers were distributed as far north as Canada where the winds let them down," he said.

The two or three reporters still in the Gazette building near the center of downtown quickly moved onto the streets and countryside to survey the damage, Jordan said. Other reporters joined after caring for their families. Of the 80 employes at the Gazette, 16 lost all their possessions, he said.

'By 7 p.m. we had a pretty doggone good summary on what happened," he said. Phone lines were out. The city was a mass of darkness. Electrical lines and gas were inoperative.

For a week, the reporters worked in shifts as copy was ferried to Middletown where it was printed. The printed papers were distributed in the late afternoon to news hungry Xenia residents whose only source of information was the newspaper and what they could learn from portable radios.

Jordan said he is anxious to return to being an afternoon newspaper. Since turning to a morning publication, his circulation has fallen 2,000 to 13,432 at the end of March.

"It's a fantastic once in a lifetime experience. I wouldn't want to go through it again, but this Pulitizer certainly wraps it up," Jordan said.

NEW YORK (AP) - The Boston Globe has won its fourth Pulitzer Prize in nine years, and playwright Edward Albee has been honored with his second Pulitzer in eight years. The Globe took honors at the 59th annual awards Monday for meritorious public service in its "massive and balanced" coverage of the Boston school desegregation crisis and Albee for drama with "Seacape," a philosophic comedy that had a 65performance run on Broadway and left town $159,000 in the hole.

In 1966 the Globe won an award in the same category and Albee was cited in 1967 for "A Delicate Balance."

Dumas Malone's five volumes of "Jefferson and His Time" won honors for history, making Malone, 83, the oldest person ever to win a Pulitzer

"The Power Broker: Robert Moses and the Fall of New York," a 1,246page, topical and controversial review of the so-called master builder's career by Robert A. Caro won for the best

National reporting honors went to the Philadelpia Inquirer team of Donald L. Bartlett and James B. Steele for a seven-part series, "Auditing the Internal Revenue Service," which bared inequities in the federal taxation

Two Chicago Tribune staffers, William Mullen, and reporter photographer Ovid Carter, were cited for international reporting. They traveled 10,000 miles across Africa and India to report on a famine that threatened almost half a billion lives.

Special local reporting honors went to the Indianapolis Star for a six-month investigation of police corruption.

The editorial writing prize was captured by John Daniel Maurice of the Charleston (W.Va.) Daily Mail. His winning editorials were on a school textbook controversy that has led to violence.

Her trenchant essays on Washington and the nation won for Mary McGrory of the Washington Star the Pulitzer Prize for Commentary.

Garry Trudeau received the editorial cartooning award for his "Doonesbury" strip with its commentary on the Nixon administration, the Watergate scandal, the Vietnam War, and the ascension of Gerald R. Ford to the presidency. It was the first time since the editorial cartoon awards were started in 1922 that the prize went to a strip cartoon which usually appears on the comics page.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Convention uncommitted. appears to be one of the states U.S. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., cannot afford to ignore in deciding what primaries to enter in his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, his top political aide says.

If Jackson enters, he could end up in a battle with Ohio Senator John Glenn. Glenn seeks to take Ohio's 152 delegates to the Democratic National

No other major candidate has announced he would enter the Buckeye State primary.

Keefe says Jackon's strategy is to capture congressional districts and may enter some in the Cleveland area. Jackson finished fourth in the 1972 Ohio primary. He dropped out of the race soon afterward.
